
Visual Hub

Posted by joshua.mcgregor - 2008/04/10 08:43

Recently getting a new iPod nano 8gb, I have been looking into video conversion, a topic I havn't had much luck with. There are countless apps available, a lot of which seem to be a waste of time and money.

I have also been looking for a converter for MKV to AVI as I have a lot of HD content and MKV isn't really compatible with my media network setup.

I came across Visual Hub which seemed to do everything I needed, and it really does.

Great app, converts any file even the 6gb MKV video files, with a presetting for iPod in which you can select preferred video quality, screen size etc.

The application also allows for multiple video conversions, so I set a conversion of a tv series, and it converted them all, then I was able to watch them in the iPod.

Great app, ran smoothly and at a good price.

<http://www.techspanion.com/visualhub/>

PS> This app would be ideal for everyone who is moaning that they can't watch the Podcast on their apple TV's :lol:

Hope this helps.

j.

Post edited by: joshua.mcgregor, at: 2008/04/15 15:06

Re:Visual Hub

Posted by nickhill - 2008/04/10 10:23

VisualHub kicks arse (I use it to convert the podcast) The free version is very good too.
