
Dedicated Q&A Show

Posted by SRH - 2008/06/11 10:36

An idea for you guys to think about and perhaps for others to comment on. Having watched both your shows with great interest and enthusiasm from the beginning, it has occurred to me that perhaps now is the time for a dedicated Q&A show.

On several occasions I would have appreciated further explanation of a particular point or been able to ask an additional relevant question. Perhaps even raised a related item for your feedback. Yes I know the forums can be used for all of this but, perhaps a Q&A show might get specific issues that less capable people (me) did not fully appreciate first time round an airing for everyone's benefit.

If the idea has merit then a really cool way would be a Skype phone-in show or failing that then viewers could email and with you guys taking say the 20 most interesting and answering them on the show.

Just an idea, maybe I have not thought it through properly and somebody will blow it out the water, but hey worth a go.

=====

Re:Dedicated Q&A Show

Posted by Kyle M - 2008/06/11 23:17

I think Tekzilla is a great example of how to do that. It would be tough to compete with them. I watch both podcasts a lot but you guys have a unique show as it is. Not to say that you shouldn't do this...just know that you have some competition from the revision 3 gang. If any of you watch that, I actually won the Zune that they gave away.

=====