have itidiots.com been a victim of the credit crunch?

Bradford and Bingley, HBOS and now ITDIOTS!!!!

I only say this because it has been about 6 weeks since last release!

I'm sure deco will still be doing ok lol!

We seem to be overlooked by the government for a £50 bailout, apparently we are not that important.

I think we have both been enjoying a period away from podcasting. I've really got into racing model touring cars.

I would think we will produce some new episodes soon.

Nick.

Its all work work work for me at the moment, Derby, France, Birmingham and now Southampton. I have no time for a life at the moment, let alone a podcast!

Maybe its time to release some user submitted content as part of a stop gap filler, until normal service is resumed!?

Think of it as the community giving something back! B) desperate times call for desperate measures... get Shabih back.

he's like the Red Adair of I.T.

i hope you get to do a new episode soon.

Well there's gratitude for you!

Maybe the quality of your work was too good!? :dry:

I'm thinking of taking the giant leap and doing my first ever podcast, thinking I'll start easy and work up from there.

Episode 1 - How to correctly use Microsoft spell checker.

How hard can it be, yet so many people forget to press F7 before sending emails. :laugh: :ohmy:

actually pressing F7 in firefox turns on Cabaret Browsing... does this mean i'll get an evening of bruce forsyth, lilly savage, barry manilow and some cancan dancers?

try it yourself...
